Ribbon Organizer

If you're like us, you probably get tired of having to dig through piles of ribbon at the bottom of a box every time you want to wrap a gift or need ribbon for your crafts. Plus, once you find it, you're lucky if it's still on the spool and not all tangled up! Don't worry though, we have the perfect solution... this easy-to-make (and super afford-able) ribbon organizer will keep all of your ribbon organized and easily accessible.

Shop at Dollar Tree – Here's What You'll Need:
- One Large Slotted Plastic Storage Basket
- Two Large Pieces of Ribbon (Each approx. 36" long)
- Your Disorganized Spools of Ribbon

Easy Step-by-Step Directions:
1. String one large piece of ribbon through the holes in the center of the ribbon spools.
2. Place the strung-together ribbon spools in the basket and pull each end of the large ribbon through the ends of the basket. Tie the ribbon ends together tightly underneath the basket.
3. Pull the loose ends of each spool of ribbon through one of the holes in the front of the basket to keep everything from getting tangled up and so the ribbon will "dispense" easily.
4. Repeat steps 1-3 with a second set of ribbon spools so you will have two rows of ribbon stored in your basket.
5. Set the basket on a shelf where you can easily pull the amount of ribbon you need through the hole and cut it off without having to remove the spool. Now the ribbon spools are held up where you can see them, and won't fall out of the basket if it tips over or gets bumped!
